4 HJR___ COMMENDING THE ALABAMA BIRTH EQUITY INITIATIVE FOR 5 ITS EFFORTS TO MEET THE NEEDS OF EXPECTING MOTHERS
6 THROUGHOUT THE STATE.
7

8 WHEREAS, Alabama has one of the highest infant and 9 maternal mortality rates in the United States, and 34
10 percent of Alabama's counties have been classified as 11 maternity health care deserts due to a lack of birthing 12 facilities and prenatal health care providers, which 13 disproportionately affects rural Alabama and Black and 14 Indigenous populations; and

15 WHEREAS, the Alabama Birth Equity Initiative is a 16 Black women-led coalition of reproductive health and mutual 17 aid organizations who have allied to combat the state's 18 maternal mortality crisis by building community-centered 19 solutions, including midwifery training, mobile health, and 20 policy advocacy to ensure safe, dignified, and equitable 21 birthing care; they focus on integrated responses to 22 systemic issues such as medical racism, food insecurity, and 23 violence; and

24 WHEREAS, in its goal to expand midwifery, the 25 initiative is launching a midwifery training pilot program
26 to fund the preceptor training of eight student Certified 27 Practicing Midwives and two Certified Nurse Midwives at the 28 Alabama Birth Center in Huntsville and Oasis Women's Health

29 in Birmingham; the initiative also has plans to advocate for 30 policy changes that will fund rural birth centers and 31 increase availability to prenatal care; in addition, the 32 initiative is planning mobile health units to provide 33 reproductive health care services in rural communities; and,
34 with the knowledge that a safe birth starts long before
35 labor begins, the coalition will address the wraparound
36 issues of stable housing, reliable transportation, 24-hour
37 food pantries, and child care support; the initiative wants 38 women to not just survive childbirth, but to also thrive as 39 mothers; and

40 WHEREAS, Alabama's maternal health crisis is not just 41 about a lack of doctors or closed hospitals; it is about the 42 way policy, poverty, and racism have worked together to make 43 safe birth a privilege instead of a right; now therefore,

44 BE IT RESOLVED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF ALABAMA, BOTH
45 HOUSES THEREOF CONCURRING, That the Alabama Birth Equity
46 Initiative is highly commended for combining the missions of 47 its member organizations to address the maternal health
48 crisis among Alabama's rural, Black, and Indigenous 49 communities by advocating for policy changes, piloting a
50 midwife program, instituting the concept of mobile health
51 units, and addressing the wraparound issues that are a 52 factor in successful births; we offer this resolution in 53 support of the initiative, its members, and its mission to 54 provide prenatal care and safe birthing centers to Alabama's 55 neglected communities.
